South Island Legion Auxiliary Chiefs

More than 4,000 patients in Victoria's DVA Hospital, HMCS Naden and Mt. St. Mary have been visited by the ladies of the Legion. This was reported at the annual meeting yesterday of the Southern Vancouver Island District Council in the Naval Veterans' hall with nine auxiliaries present. One source of revenue for hospital work was the Legion Day fund amounting to more than $1,700 coming in in donations. The new executive for the Council is pictured above, left to right: Mrs. H. T. McCullock, secretary-treasurer for Legion Day funds of Britannia Branch No. 7; Mrs. George Orr, vice-president, from Malahat branch; Mrs. D. Swan, president, from Britannia branch, and Mrs. W. P. Trace, secretary-treasurer for District Council, from Pro Patria branch.—(Colonist photo)

Hold Panty Parade

Berlin Girls Show Defiance

BERLIN (UPI)—West Berlin girls yesterday showed their defiance of the Soviet threat to the city with a panty parade.

It was all quite dignified. Pretty models—and they were pretty — displayed the latest styles in girdles at a fashion show at the new Hilton Hotel.

There's not much news in that, perhaps, but the whole show was organized mainly to show the world that this city's models, dressmakers, postmen, officials and everyone else are not afraid of the future. It showed just that.

And the show coincided with the expiration of three months of the Soviets six-month Berlin ultimatum.

Fashion writers from all over the world and industry representatives and just plain people crowded into see the show.

Everyone agreed that morale in a city is pretty good if in the face of harsh Soviet threats to take over the city, people take time out to watch a panty parade.

The "panty parade" was actually a high-fashion show of Triumph's girdles and corsets to whip the girls into shape for the new "natural" look. Waist nippers and seperation bras to put the bosom and waistline back in place were shown by models whose shapes ran the gamut from teener to matron.

Forget about your Waistline!

LOVELIER YOU

By Mary Sue Miller

UNDETECTABLE AIDS TO VISION. To wear or not to wear contact lenses — that seems to be a question uppermost in the minds of many full-time glasses wearers. If you count yourself in the group, it may help you to a decision to know these facts about contacts:

Four million people wear contact lenses and 12,000 members of the eye professions are schooled to prescribe and fit them.

Almost all wearers of spectacles — even those who use bifocals—can be fitted to contacts. But one's own eye doctor should decide this point.

Lenses are made of clear or tinted plastic. They are the size of an aspirin and light as a down feather. They may be worn up to 16 hours a day.

On the average, it takes two or three weeks to reach all-day wearing. It is necessary to spend eight to ten hours in the practitioner's office during the first year for training, adjustments and lens checking.

The cost is between $150 and $300; lenses can be protected against loss by insurance.

As a psychological lift, the value of these undetectable aids to vision is without price.

Qualified Teachers Needed in Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada needs at least 23,600 qualified teachers to replace unqualified instructors in publicly-controlled schools, says a national survey of teacher qualifications.

A report by the Canadian Teachers' Federation on trends in certification standards says that in 1956-57 teachers with less than junior matriculation, and only one year of teacher training, made up 19.2 per cent of Canada's 123,340 teachers. This figure represents the "current minimum shortage" of qualified teachers, the 30-page report says.

Arctic Angel Honored

MONTREAL (CP) — Mrs. Maid Watt who with her husband is credited with saving the Cree Indian tribe from extinction during the depression, was honored Thursday night for her work in the north.

Mrs. Watt, called the angel of the Arctic, was presented with a plaque by the Canadian Fur Traders' Association and a citation by the department of Indian Affairs.

Mrs. Watt and her late husband saved the beaver from disappearing from the eastern shore of James Bay. The beaver was the Crees' staple—they ate the meat and used the skins for barter.

In 1929 the beaver began to disappear and its was feared the Cree would too, since they knew no other way of living. But with the help of the Quebec department the Watts were able to save the beaver and the Cree.
